

Annotation and key words

Annotation in Czech

This thesis deals with multicultural aspects in teachers' work. In addition, the survey provides a certain historical context related to the education of minorities in the Czech Republic before 1989, and describes the current situation in the area of multicultural education in our country.

It examines how teachers should be equipped to deal with situations linked to multicultural education and what teaching methods teachers use to motivate pupils.

In the practical part, it shows examples of several lessons in which teachers work with broad topics of multicultural education. It also contains an overview of several case studies based on experience.

The work should contribute to a greater discussion of the subject.

Key words in Czech

Multicultural education, multiculturalism, nation, ethnicity, racism, assimilation, minorities, race, xenophobia, culture, globalization, segregation, personality, personality of teacher, competence, intercultural competence, diversity, trans-cultural approach, cultural-standard approach, identity, intercultural psychology, intercultural sensitivity, integration, activating methods in teaching, learning.